

Gov't reconnects road sections

The Communications and Transportation Secretariat (SCT) has invested over $258 million for the reconstruction of 140 road sections. The government of Egidio Torre Cantú has become the government of infrastructure, working in close coordination with the Mexican Federal Government led by Enrique Peña Nieto.

The Tamaulipas road network is one of the most important in the country. Only last weekend, Tamaulipas crossed over 700 thousand private Mexican vehicles entering the United States. Annually more than half a million trailers cross this roadway carrying goods from Mexico to Canada.

Considering these activities, the state government maintains the roads and route integration between important cities and small towns throughout the country free of toll charges.

Assistant Secretary of Transportation Infrastructure Fernando Cánovas Royo said that this road deal is part of a general reconstruction plan to improve communication access and infrastructure throughout the entire state.

"These communication projects have benefited more than 100,000 inhabitants in 26 municipalities with secure and good communication access," he said.

The recuperation of the roads in these regions contributes to the complete integration of the roadway network and provides major benefits to the thousands of commuters traveling through Tamaulipas for business or vacation.

"There is an additional investment of 3.5 million pesos to rehabilitate 12 kilometers of the rural road Santa Gertrudis to Puerto de los Ébanos and the cross bridge on Ejido San Germán.
